

Andy Hill Inducted into the
Canisius College DiGamma Honor Society

March 2, 2017

It is with great pride and pleasure that we announce the induction of Andrew D.W. Hill into the Canisius College DiGamma Honor Society.

The purpose of the DiGamma Honor Society is to honor those who, as alumni, students, faculty or administrators have rendered outstanding service to, and promote the interests and welfare of, the College. It is important to note that only eight alumni are inducted into the society every year.

“For more than 80 years, Canisius College has recognized its finest students, alumni, faculty and administrators with membership in the DiGamma Honor Society. This prestigious society is composed of “men and women for others” who distinguish themselves working for the advancement of the college and who provide exemplary service on behalf of students and alumni.”

Andy graduated from Canisius College in 1986 with a Bachelors of Science degree in accounting, prior to obtaining his MBA in investments from Syracuse University. Andy credits his successful, life-long career in finance to the education he received from Canisius. He is currently a member of the Naples Chapter of Canisius Alumni and frequently hosts events in the area to further the success of the university.

Andy will be in Buffalo, New York this Friday, March 3rd to attend the 2017 Annual Induction Dinner a dinner and receive an award along with his fellow inductees. Congratulations to Andy for being selected as a member of this prestigious honor society!
